“ONE OR MANY SCIENCES FOR PSYCHOTHERAPY: WHAT CONSTITUTES EVIDENCE?”

In May 27-30th, 2010 the Society for the Exploration of Psychotherapy Integration (SEPI), in cooperation with School of Comparative Psychotherapy (SPC), will organize the 26th Annual Conference. Our conference site will be the Grand Hotel Mediterraneo, situated in central Florence, Italy.

The title of this year's conference is: "One or many sciences for psychotherapy: what constitutes evidence?"

Since 1984, SEPI Annual Conference, aimed at integration across theoretical perspectives on psychotherapy. SEPI provides a community for clinicians and scholars who wish to explore the limitations of a single school perspective and a forum for those interested in learning alternative ways of working with difficult clinical issues.

About us

SEPI is an international society that has as primary objectives to encourage communication and to serve as a reference group for individuals interested in exploring the interface between differing approaches to psychotherapy. SEPI also serves an educational function by publishing a journal; by encouraging ongoing collaborative research on the process of psychotherapy; by keeping members up-to-date concerning books, articles, workshops, and courses relevant to rapprochement among approaches; and by sharing clinical approaches and guidelines that reflect themes of convergence and complementary.
